As Women Live Longer, They Should Also Plan For A Second Retirement

Retirement · https://community.womensmoneymatters.org/resources/as-women-live-longer-they-should-also-plan-for-a-second-retirement/

Link:

The Forbes article by Joseph Coughlin discusses the importance of women planning for a "second retirement," given their longer life expectancy. As women are likely to live longer than men, they may face unique financial challenges, including healthcare costs and the need for sustainable income throughout retirement. The article emphasizes the necessity for women to proactively manage their finances, consider various retirement income strategies, and account for potential lifestyle changes in their later years. It advocates for comprehensive financial planning to ensure security and well-being in both the first and second stages of retirement.